

Laura J. Lane
Director of Middle East and Mediterranean Trade Affairs
U.S. Trade Representative Office

Laura Lane is the director responsible for all bilateral trade affairs with the Middle East and Mediterranean countries at the office of the United States Trade Representative. She serves as lead negotiator for services trade and global electronic commerce under the U.S.-E.U. Transatlantic Economic Partnership. She is also a member of the U.S. negotiating team currently negotiating China's services commitments as part of its WTO accession package. She served as U.S. negotiator for the WTO Financial Services negotiations, recently concluded on December 12, 1997. Before joining USTR, Ms. Lane served as the U.S. State Department representative on the U.S. negotiating team for the WTO Basic Telecommunication Services talks.

Ms. Lane was a U.S. foreign service officer from 1990 to 1997. She worked in the Trade Policy and Programs office in the Bureau of Economic and Business Affairs at the U.S. Department of State from 1995 to 1997. She developed and coordinated the Department's position on trade in services issues under the North America Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), the Free Trade Area for the Americas (FTAA) and the Asia Pacific Economic Conference (APEC). Laura worked in the State Department Operations Center from 1994 to 1995 as Watch Officer under Secretary Warren Christopher.

In her overseas assignments, Ms. Lane was the economic and political and military affairs officer at the American Embassy in Kigali, Rwanda from 1993 to 1994. She led the evacuation effort of American citizens from Rwanda in April 1994 and returned in August as political advisor to U.S. forces providing humanitarian relief to Rwandan refugees. Laura served as consular officer in Bogota, Colombia from 1990 to 1992.

Ms. Lane holds a Master of Science degree in international economics from Georgetown University and a Bachelor's Degree from Loyola University.
